

My project is a website for a fictional cat shelter, Pittsburgh Cat Rescue. I completed two pages so far: the home page and the “Meet the Cats” page. Here are the features of each:

Home:

- Nav bar
- Footer
- Image - Photo with name of shelter and slogan.
- Carousel - Photos of featured cats with captions.
- Buttons - Adopt, Donate, and Volunteer buttons at bottom of page.

Meet the Cats:

- Nav bar
- Footer
- Modal & Form - To schedule an appointment to come to the shelter and visit/ adopt.
- Cards - With photos and short bios for the cats.

One difficulty I had while coding my website was getting the cards to line up nicely on my “Meet the Cats” page. I used the Bootstrap grid and tried to place the cards 2 across on mobile (col-6) and 4 across on larger viewports (col-3). The cards weren’t lining up correctly with the grid; they were showing 1 across on mobile and 3 across on larger viewports, and they also looked wonky and uncentered. I did some Googling and found the card-deck class, which can be used to style multiple cards so they line up nicely.

Building my own website with Bootstrap definitely helped to drive home the concepts I learned in the course. It also gave me practice with looking things up and finding solutions on my own, which I know will be necessary after graduation!

Here are some screenshots of the home page (in an xs viewport) and the “Meet the Cats” page (in a lg viewport).
